Committee To Solicit Contributions To Aid Needy Students

OBJECTIVE IS $200

I.S.S. Sponsors Drive In Co-Operation With Campus Associations

The campaign for the relief of German Refugee students, sponsored by the I. S. S. with the aid of the S. C. M. and the Maccabean Circle, gets under way this morning and will last for one week. Every student will be approached for a contribution and it is the hope of the committee in charge of the Campaign that every one will contribute at least something. The objective is $200, and the amounts collected will go to form a scholarship to aid needy students in European countries who have fled Germany due to their political opinions. The I. S. S. is a non-political body whose purpose is purely humanitarian. Since 1919, this organization has helped financially many needy European students, besides its other work in awakening students to a sense of their responsibilities. The organization has held student conferences every year in order to promote better understanding among students of different nationalities and creeds.

Committee In Charge

The committee in charge of the campaign at McGill consists of Alma Howard, Beatrice Klineberg, William Hasler and M. W. Bloomfield. Phil Vineberg and J. McCabe are in charge of the collections in Arts; R. Ein, in Commerce; Alma Howard and E. Elkin, in R.V.C.; I. Dublin and W. Gibson, in Medicine; and K. Baker, in Law. These collectors will have assistants under them, who will canvass the whole University.

Similar campaigns have been carried on in other Canadian universities, in several in the United States and in

Capable Co-Eds Cornered If Pithy Politics Proceed

Worried looks have been noted around the vicinity of a certain building on the corner of Sherbrooke Street and University, anxious examinations of the interiors of female persons... in short the co-eds are cornered as to the fate the future has in store for them. It appears that the lads have thought of a system whereby the woman pays her share of the good old meal check. But it is a dangerous method, for the ladies must endorse it in full before it can be put to practical use.

Here's how: one of the local Debating organizations, the Junior Debating League, has come to the noble decision that this business of "your check, Sir" must be brought to an end. Thus they have chosen as their subject for a Mock Parliament on Monday afternoon: "Resolved that the Dutch Treat be established as a National Institution, socially and politically," the Government putting the bill to the house. Now the success of the motion depends on the vote of the members of that house, and what should the boys do but ask their friends of the opposite sex to comprise said house. That is, every collegian brings his little collette and she, after listening to his words of wisdom on the fatal question, then casts her all-important vote. Do-or-die, but the Junior Debating League has faith in its resolution.

The only trouble with the scheme is that very few of the League members wish to jeopardize their chances of future financial solidity by forming part of the Opposition. Yet the Parliament must have the Opposition of some sort or other or it won't be a Parliament. Should any innocent bystander suddenly disappear and reappear several days later murmuring vaguely of "Dutch Treats, down with 'em!", it may be surmised that he has come under the baleful influence of the Junior Debating League, who have abducted him as part of their Opposition. Again, should any orator around the university wish to attain sudden popularity, he is asked to get in touch with the aforesaid League, stating that he is against the Dutch Treat. Words are valuable, but in such a case...

Erroll Amaron is a very forceful speaker. Graduate students and particularly those of his time will be especially welcomed. Gifford Mitchell will be playing the organ and Cyril Foggo will be leading the service.

Sports Section Of 'Old McGill' Altered

Portraits Of Individual Winners In Activities Included

Complete reorganization of the sports section of this year's number of "Old McGill" was announced last night by the sports editor, John Nolan. Not only has the grouping of the various teams been changed but several features of unusual interest have been especially prepared.

In view of the great interest expressed by the student body in the promised gymnasium an article on this subject has been prepared under the auspices of the graduates society which includes plans of the structure as it will appear when completed. In his article "Random Recollections" Professor Evans also notes the gymnasium of the past and speculates on that of the future.

Complete reorganization of the grouping of the teams is also announced. Related sports have been grouped together under suitable headings and an attempt has been made to apportion prominence among the teams on a more equitable basis than has hitherto been the case.

A further feature will be the portraits of individual winners in such activities as track and B.W.F. This will be grouped in a suitable setting. Some distinguished mark of championship will also be accorded such teams as have merited this honour.

Final Truth Goal Of Metaphysicians

J. R. McCabe Addressed Philosophical Society Last Night

SEARCH FOR REALITY Must Admit We Understand Logic Of Our Own Language

Discussing "A Case Against Metaphysics," J. R. McCabe of the Faculty of Arts, last night told the Philosophical Society that "Metaphysics is the systematic misuse of a terminology founded for this very purpose of misuse." A survey of contemporary philosophy was chosen as a preliminary to the main theme of the address and this led to a definition of metaphysics which was called "That branch of philosophy which deals with universal problems which are ultimate and often non-soluble."

McCabe then proceeded to state various metaphysical questions such as "Is there a common stuff out of which all facts are made?" or "Is the sensation which I call blue really the same as that which my neighbor calls blue?" Questions of this calibre, he said, were interesting to metaphysicians today.

Four Divisions The critique, the main theme of the paper, was divided into four parts. First, the operational criterion; second, the introspective attack; third, the symbolic attack; and, fourth, the logical approach of Ludwig Wittgenstein. The speaker elaborated on these points and discussed them fully.

In conclusion McCabe stated that most of the propositions and questions that have been written about philosophical matters are not false but senseless, to the fact that we do not understand the logic of our language. "Whereof one can not speak," he admitted, translating a German phrase, "must one be silent."

Band Holds Banquet Previous To Game

Dinner In Union Closes Important Activities For Year

The McGill Band will hold its annual banquet tonight at 6:00 p.m. in the Union Grill Room. This dinner will be followed at 8:00 by the Hockey Game at which the Band will play.

The main feature of the Banquet will be the presence of several of the former students who were bandmasters while in college. After the supper, the annual election of officers for the coming year will take place. Following this, the members of the Band will don sweaters and caps and proceed to the Forum to play at the game.

All the members are especially requested to be present on this occasion as it is the last function of the Band which is important for this year.

Association; and Mary Hamilton, President of the Women's Union. Three positions were already filled by acclamation, namely, Kenneth Baker, President of the Debating Union; John MacLeish, Vice President of the Debating Union; and Roland Denton, Representative to the Athletic Board. The percentage of voting returns was greatly increased in all faculties except Medicine, over last year, as high as five times the number of votes polled last year being recorded in Dentistry

The elected officers officially assume office next July the first, and will carry out their duties from that date until July of the following year. Lorne Gales who is in his second year Law has had a long and varied career at McGill. His activities which have been many include Captain and later President of the Rowing Team, Business Manager of the Red and White Revue from 1931-1933, Secretary of the Players' Club 1930-1931, and Vice President 1931-1932, and Law Representative on the Council this year.

The recent elections have stimulated a new interest in the campaigning by reason of the policy of candidates submitting platforms for publication. In the past the system of blind voting has prevailed with the result that a feeling of indifference was aroused. It is highly conceivable that this month's high polling average may be attributed to the platform campaign carried out during the last week.

Hersey Oratorical Contestant Named

Junior Debating League Held Annual Meeting Yesterday

The tryouts for the Milton Hersey representative from the Junior Debating League were culminated yesterday when Alfred Pick, winner of the Talbot Papineau Cup, was judged by Mr. George of the English Department the winner of the trial event. Second to him was Allan Anderson. Pick spoke on "The Illusion of Progress."

The Milton Hersey competition is to be held under the auspices of the Montreal Debating League about the twenty-fifth of this month. The Mock Parliament scheduled to be held with representatives of R.V.C. has been indefinitely postponed due to pressure of circumstances, and it is doubtful as to whether it will be part of the activities of the Junior Debating League this year. Plans are proceeding, nevertheless, to have the same parliament convene on Monday with

Debating Union To Appoint Executive At Meeting Tuesday

The final meeting of the Debating Union Society will be held on Tuesday, March 13th, at 5:00 p.m. in the Grill Room of the Union. At this meeting the retiring President, R. Wilson Beckett, will present a report of the year's activities. There will also be an election of officers to fill the following posts in the Debating Union; Secretary, Junior Treasurer, and four members of the standing Committee.

The Secretary of the Debating Union has received a letter from the University of Porto Rico stating that due to unforeseen difficulties that have arisen there, it is necessary for them to cancel the arrangements that had been made for an American tour. This tour was to have included a debate at McGill on March 14.

Professor Adair To Address Final Meeting Of Circle

THE final official meeting of the Maccabean Circle will be held Sunday at three o'clock in the Grill Room of the Union when Professor Adair, of the Department of History, will speak on "The New Spain," and reports of the year's activities including the informal dance will be delivered.

Professor Adair is an authority on Spanish history and he will treat of the changes that that country has undergone in recent years. Spain is a country of especial interest to Jews as much of the highest in Spanish and Jewish culture may be traced to the period prior to the expulsion of the Jews. The new Spanish Government about which Professor Adair will speak has recently issued an invitation for Jews to return to that country.

Inasmuch as the Circle is co-operating with the I. S. S. in its current campaign, arrangements in this regard will be made. All interested are invited to be present.

Orchestra Presents Classical Program

Offers Mendelssohn's "Italian" Symphony For First Time Sunday

The Imperial Theatre will be again the scene of the Montreal Orchestra's Sunday afternoon concert. This will be the second of the last appearance of the orchestra this season, and a program of numbers have been chosen that will appeal to the largest circle of admirers of the art of music.

A classic that is popular with symphonic audiences all over the world, but which has not yet been offered by the Montreal Orchestra is the "Italian" Symphony (No. 4 in A) by Mendelssohn, which will open Sunday's concert. The music is of a light and gay nature, and derives its style mainly from the last movement which is marked Saltarello, a folk dance of Italy.

Arnold Bax' musical setting of the Irish Saga depicting the play of the immortals with mortals who sail over the sea, which is here called "The Garden of Fand" will be the second number of the program. Completing the offerings will be Bach's 5th Brandenburg Concerto, with Severin Moisse, pianist, H. E. Baillargeon, flutist, and M. Onderet, violinist as soloists, and Wagner's immortal descriptive music "The Ride of the Valkyries." The concert starts at three.

Professor Barnes Explains Chemical History In Speech

Traces Evolution Of It From Earliest Ages To Present

HELPED BY PRINTING

Text Books Introduced To Explain Theories Of Period

Professor W. H. Barnes delivered an address at the Mechanics Institute last night with the "Origin of Chemistry" as his subject.

The speaker outlined briefly the development of Chemistry from the earliest age to the later time of the Egyptians and the Greeks. The primitive men knew something of chemistry through their contact with fire and also through the knowledge that they had gained about several metals. The early Egyptians knew enough about pigments to ornament their vessels. There was also some knowledge of cosmetics and antiseptics.

Greeks Didn't Experiment

Greek chemists of the first period contented themselves with trying to offer explanations for the various phenomena that could be seen in everyday life. Logic formed the basis of their reasoning and they never took the trouble to experiment with their theories or ideas. In India at about this time he learned Kanada advanced his theory that all matter is discontinuous in structure. A little later on Lucipus and Democritus originated the term atom. Euclid and Archimedes made their contributions when the world was under the dominance of Alexander the Great. The Romans contented themselves with collecting all the data that could be collected.

In the sixth century B.C. the Chinese chemists had left the Western scientists far in the rear and even went so far as to propose a scheme for long life that is almost as good as any of our modern proposals. Professor Barnes illustrated how the Chinese

An Improvement

WE RECORD with interest the fact that in the elections held yesterday, a record vote was polled. In all faculties considerable interest was to be seen in the elections. We hope that the student body will continue this interest throughout the coming year. It is only through such interest that student affairs will rise out of the slough that has engulfed them recently.

To the successful candidates we offer our congratulations and wishes for their success during their term of office. It is also to be hoped that they will fulfil their offices to the best of their ability, as they no doubt will. It is within their power to steer student affairs at McGill into new and brighter avenues.

The I.S.S. Campaign

STARTING this morning and extending for one week, the International Student Service at McGill, with the cooperation of the S.C.M. and the Maccabean Circle, is sponsoring a campaign for the relief of those students who were obliged to flee Germany when the present regime came into power. The objective is $200, which will be enough to establish a scholarship in McGill's name.

Ever since the visit of Dr. Walter Latschnig, there has been manifest at McGill a considerable interest in the work of the I.S.S., the result of which is this campaign. Students have felt that McGill should do something for their work, and now a greater interest in the relief side of the organization, particularly at such trying time in world history.

I.S.S. is a non-political body and was founded after the war to aid students of the world and to help bring about a better understanding between students of different race and opinion. The society has its headquarters in Geneva and publishes its publications there. It has done remarkable work in bettering understanding and in being of financial aid to students in need of it.

There is no need to emphasize the conditions that exist and the important fact that such conditions be recognized. The only way to show a realization of this fact is to contribute to the drive. Every student will be approached and it is hoped that every one will make a contribution no matter how small it may be. McGill must not fall down in this matter. The cause is a worthy one and the support goes to students like ourselves, who live in countries where political feelings run much higher than over here.

The Frivolous Student

SETTLED and mature individuals, with undoubted good intentions, seem to find considerable gratification these days in deploring in the gravest of terms the extreme frivolity of the younger generation. And a large share of this criticism is directed in particular against the college student.

It is not necessary to proceed to a discussion of the truth of the statement that the average young men and women of today are more frivolous than their grandparents were at the same age. Perhaps the allegation is in the main, at least, well-founded, although it seems that older generations throughout history have always shaken their heads in dismay at the levity of the youth of the country. However, that is aside from the point. Even granting that the student of today is as he is painted by the critics, it must not be denied that there are other things to be considered in passing judgment on him.

Life under the present economic conditions is a great struggle. The bright spots are few and far between indeed. What a valuable asset, then, is the ability to see the brighter side of things. The man who is able to find opportunity in the turmoil of the day's work for a good joke and a hearty laugh is fortunate, to say the least. The bantering, happy character of the average college student today is a welcome feature. The world has need enough of men who can make the serious realities of life a little less serious than they are.

Thus in lamenting the frivolity of the modern college student the critics seem to miss one important point at least. We feel no hesitancy in adding that they miss other equally important ones as well.

Woman wants monogamy;
Man delights in novelty.
Love is woman's moon and sun;
Man has other forms of fun.
Woman lives but in her lord;

Don Juan: Poo! why should I be civil to them or to you? In this Palace of Lies a truth or two will not hurt you. Your friends are all the dullest dogs I know. They are not beautiful: they are only decorated. They are not clean: they are only shaved and starched. They are not dignified: they are only fashionably dressed. They are not educated: they are only college passmen. They are not religious: they are only pious. They are not moral: they are only conventional. They are not virtuous: they are only cowardly. They are not even vicious: they are only "frail." They are not artistic: they are only lascivious. They are not prosperous: they are only rich. They are not loyal: they are only servile; not dutiful, only sheepish; not public-spirited, only patriotic; not courageous, only quarrelsome; not determined, only obstinate; not masterful, only domineering; not self-controlled, only obtuse; not self-respecting, only vain; not kind, only sentimental; not social, only gregarious; not considerate, only polite; not intelligent, only opinionated; not progressive, only factious; not imaginative, only superstitious; not just, only vindictive; not generous, only propitiary; not disciplined, only cowed; and not truthful at all—liars every one of them, to the very backbone of their souls.

Flap, flap, the captive bird in the cage
Beating its wings against the four corners.
Depressed, depressed the scholar in the narrow street:

Clasping a shadow, he dwells in an empty house.
When he goes out, there is nowhere for him to go:
Bunches and brambles block up his path.
He composes a memorial, but it is rejected and unread.

He is left stranded, like a fish in a dry pond.
Without—he has not a single farthing of salary:
Within—there is not a peck of grain in his larder.
His relations upbraid him for his lack of success:
His friends and callers daily decrease in number.

And this should be the wise man's pattern.

At the Palace the feature film is "This Side of Heaven." "The Girl from Maxim's," the added attraction, is a novel farcical comedy with music and an evergreen plot which blooms gaily in the fascinating and boisterous atmosphere of the gay "nineties," with its wild choruses, the abandon of its dancers, and the smug respectability of its domestic life. The stars are Leslie Henson and Frances Day. The picture was directed by Alexander Korda, who will be remembered for his fine direction of "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

Capitol

Smashing thrills thunder across the screen in a breath-taking background for native adventure in "Eskimo," undoubtedly the strangest love story ever unfolded on the screen, which opens at the Capitol today.

"Eskimo," which is said to be even greater than "Trader Horn," is a mighty drama of the Arctic. Col. W. S. Van Dyke and his troupe spent nearly two years in the frozen North, suffering untold hardships in order to get this authentic drama, depicting intimate scenes of Eskimos in their loves and hates—a saga of love and passion that flamed in sub-zero weather. Captain Peter Freuchen's thrilling story of life and love among the natives in this northernmost point inhabited by mankind has been faithfully and beautifully recorded.

As a special added feature, those two inimitable comedians Laurel and Hardy will be seen in 30 minutes of hilarity in their latest hit, "Oliver the Eighth."

Loew's

Thrills, chills, suspense, beauty, spectacle and melody are the ingredients to be found in the stage and screen show at Loew's starting today. Boris Karloff the uncanny is seen in his finest "terror" role "The Ghoul," while the stage revue "Illusions" brings back to Montreal the popular screen star Bernice Claire.

"The Ghoul" is a spine-chilling, hair-raising mystery story of a forgotten crime. It is creepy enough to satisfy the most exacting seeker of the eerie for it combines all the thrills and chills of "Frankenstein," "Dracula," and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

The stage Revue "Illusions" is most refreshing and features a cast of popular screen and stage celebrities. Headlining the revue is Bernice Claire, famous star of the screen and musical comedy. Others featured are Lucille Page, the dance sensation of two continents and late star of Earl Carroll's "Vanities"—Lambert "The Mad Wag" of the Xylophone—The 6 Danwills, sensational European acrobats and late features of Ringling Bros. Circus—and Loew's 12 Rockets in new dance routines.

Imperial

"Le Voleur," from the celebrated play by Bernstein and "Trois Hommes en Habit," with the famous Tito Schipa are present in an excellent double bill at the Imperial this coming week. Proclaimed as one of the most spectacular films of the year in France, "Le Voleur" presents a story full of pathos interpreted by one of the most brilliant actresses of the French screen, Medeleine Renaud of the Comedie Francaise in the pathetic role of the wife committing robbery to gain the love of her husband.

In the second feature, "Trois Hommes en Habit" is presented by Tito Schipa in a truly Parisian comedy.

An ever smiling archy wrangler brought an attractive girl to the Maccabean Dance and caused a young biologist to come stag, thus belying the fact that he is a freed man.

Campaign Support

The campaign has been endorsed by the President of the Students' Society, Gerald Halpenny, and has the support of many of the staff and many Campus organizations. The money collected will go to establish a scholarship which will enable promising students to finish their education in France and other countries.

McGill has always shown herself generous in the matter of charity and it is in order, that the same support be given this drive. The number of student refugees is about several thousand. Of this group, many are being put into trades, while only the most brilliant are being allowed to finish their University course. Those who are in this last category are sure to contribute greatly to their respective fields.

Hockeyists Fight With Backs To Wall Tonight

Redmen Out To Reverse Previous Surprise Loss

Powers Replaces McHugh In Nets — Work-Out Satisfactory Yesterday — Record Crowd Anticipated At Forum — Coach Bell Stands Pat On Line-Up — Confident Of Being Able To Reverse Doc. Clement's Canadiens

MAURICE POWERS will see action in the Redmen's nets tonight. The lanky and loquacious custodian has answered the call of Coach Bobby Bell and will be behind the Redmen's defence in tonight's all-important struggle with Dr. Clement's Flying Frenchmen. His workout yesterday proved satisfactory.

Redmen Confident

Handed a surprise defeat on Wednesday night at the hands of a surprising outfit, the result of the tilt was something of a jolt to the McGill puckmen, breaking as it did their string of no losses at 23. But it is felt that loss had to come sometime and although the play-off game should not have been the particular game in which to falter, the situation is still remediable. The game can be regarded as a had game out of their systems, a like result being capable of occurrence in a team of sterling merit at any time. The Redmen are full confident of being able to cope with the Clements in tonight's struggle.

The Redmen's form was admittedly somewhat below par, and the exhibition they put up against the Canadiens lacked polish and finish to a marked degree. It was only at intervals that they attained their finished performance of previous tilts and sparkled with their usual wont.

Criticism Groundless

Much criticism has been directed their way on their losing the title, most of which is absolutely groundless and foolish. The theory that they have been overplayed doesn't hold water. It is merely one of those things that happens to a stellar outfit, and which can be accounted for in no other way than that the team was out of step that night. Their season's performance lends weight to the opinion that the next two games will see the Redmen's colours flying high.

On the other hand, Les Canadiens are chucking at their performance and see no good reason why they should not be able to do their feat. A wily crew of puckchasers, Les Habitants, led by a wily coach.

Coach Bobby Bell stands pat on his line-up with the exception of Goalie McHugh, whom the colourful Powers will replace. Hughie Farquharson, who had the pep battered out of him in the first period of Wednesday's game, knows exactly what to expect, and will be on the lookout for similar tactics. He will occupy the face-off position flanked by Tommy Robertson on the right and Kenny Farmer on the left wing positions. With Farquharson somewhat off colour in Wednesday's tilt, the Robertson-Farquharson-Farmer line was just that much more off form.

"Daddy" Hall and Gordie Melkie-john will operate in front of Powers and should keep the area back of the blue line clear of anything that comes their way. Blonde Jack McGill was rushing to beat the band in the last tilt, and his tactics played much havoc with the opposition. Shag Jr. put on a keen display, and his deft stick should spell trouble for Archambault, the mite custodian of the Habitants' stronghold. Freddie Wigle and Bob McLernon will be on hand to lend their valuable assistance when necessary. While rushing Jean Paul Elle plans to spring something that will keep the Clement men guessing. Neil Crutchfield's shoulder is reported to be well on the mend, his injured wing standing the gaff of the conflict in good style. Shaughnessy-Crutchfield-McGill line is itching for action, and Goalie Archambault had better watch his laurels when this trio hit the ice tonight.

Doc Clement sends out the same line-up as faced McGill in Wednesday night's game. Pilon will face off at centre flanked by Berger on the right and Gaudette on the left. Paul Arcand and Jimmie Wilson will try to stop the score-minded Redmen, while Archambault will be the man to beat in the nets. Piorier, Robert, Boudreau, R. Archambault, Malenfant, Duff, Grant and Lalonde will do alternate duty.

The Forum cash register is merrily jingling to the sound of what is thought to be a record attendance for amateur conflicts. Its do or die for the Redmen tonight, and if things go as planned that game on Monday should be a humdinger.

Swimmers Entered In Three Events At Y.M.H.A. Meet

Howard, Bourne, Stein And Shaw Represent McGill

THE McGill Swimming Club will be represented in three of the nine natorial events to be run off in the Y.M.H.A. Swimming Meet tomorrow evening at the north end natorium. Other clubs entering swimmers in the meet are Y.M.H.A., M.A.A.A., M.S.C., K of C., and Central Y.M.C.A., and Nationale, most likely.

Only four McGill swimmers are entered in the meet, Mark Stein, Palmer Howard, Pete Bourne and Fred Shaw. This quartet will enter three of the events to be run off, the 50 yard free style, the 100 yard free style and the 200 yard free style relay. Bourne and Howard will enter the 50 yard race, while Stein and Shaw will be entered in the 100 yard race. Bill Sprenger and Jim Wilson have not entered the meet due to academic pressure.

The events in which the Redmen are entered should be closely-contested from start to finish and the Red swimmers are slated for a hard workout in trying to take these events. Some of the city's best swimming stylists will be on hand, and the races should be close all along.

The McGill swimmers are not competing for the Stober Medley Relay this year as their back and breast stroke men have settled down to the grind. There will be no diving events on the card.

Law Annexes Class Hockey Crown By Round Score Of 6-4

Craig And Lapointe Net Commerce IV's Brace Of Talents

HARD CHECKING TILT
LAW'S smart puckchasing sextet split hairs sufficiently fine yesterday to take Commerce IV into camp by a 3-2 count, duplicating their previous feat the day before to take the Interclass hockey gonfalon by the round score of 6-4. The play was featured by fast breaking and hard checking which threatened to break out in some spots, but cooler heads alleviated any serious trouble.

The stellar work of the Forbes-Lamontagne-Savignac line accounted for the Lawyers' three tallies to put the game on ice. Coupled with a keen offensive spurge was the rugged defensive play of Leggat and Drury, who handed out more than they received, most effectively. Hemens, in goal, stopped the sniping of Linton and McLean, in fine fashion.

Grant Goals Well
The brunt of the Commerce Seniors' attack was borne by Linton, McLean and Frazer, who acquitted themselves quite capably against tough opposition.

Craig and McNutt kept the Lawyers at bay pretty well, and goalie Grant in the Commerce nets had his hands full with the Crabtree and Savignac thrusts.

Tommy Calder and Bob McDuff handled a difficult game capably. Most of the Law faculty were on hand, to see that the proceedings went along as desired.

Commerce IV's goals came off the sticks of Craig and Lapointe, the former tallying on an assist from Linton, the second goal being countered on an assist from Gray. The Forbes-Savignac-Lamontagne line supplied the scoring punch for Law's three tallies.

MAURICE POWERS

Goalie Powers rallies to the call of the Redmen. His dexterity in keeping puck and goal well separated stands him in good stead.

THEOLOGS IN CAGE VICTORY OVER ARTS

Take Hapless Moyse Hall Crew By 29-4 Count

THE towering sky pilots from the Theological faculty smashed their way yesterday afternoon to a stunning 29-4 victory over a befuddled Arts crew which showed little or none of the basketball that has characterized their play throughout the interclass games. The tall shifty Theologs ran rings around the smaller Artsmen and were never in danger, from the opening whistle to the finish. Dangerfield and Sharkey played brilliant basketball for the Parsons, each scoring eight points, while they fed their teammates many bright scoring chances and generally made life miserable for the Moyse Hall team.

Price, Wigdor and Rabin were the pick of the losers, but could get absolutely nowhere against the towering Theologs. Lack of team play and poor shooting at the few chances they did have spelled defeat for the Artists, who now hang by a thin thread in the pennant race. The Theologs with their victory kept pace with the league-leading Medicine squad, who play Commerce today in what should prove a sanguine encounter.

McGill Cagers Lose Dodds Cup

Drop Close 33-28 Game To Nationale Hoop Squad

Ancient Trophy Leaves McGill For First Time In Four Years — Lewin, Faulkner And Ross Complete College Basketball Careers — New Captain Will Be Elected This Afternoon To Replace Lewin

THE DODDS TROPHY, which has been gathering dust for four years now in the Union, leaves McGill at last and hies its weary way to Cherrier St., where its coming will evoke much joy in the hearts of Nationale supporters. The East-enders won the right to the coveted piece of silverware and 1934 city supremacy in a close 33-28 victory over the Redmen at the Sun Life gym last night.

The game was pretty much of a sketchy exhibition viewed from a purely technical angle, but it nevertheless served to keep an overflow crowd in a high state of hysterics throughout, as first one team and then the other tore willy-nilly up the floor in quest of baskets. Despite the easily-apparent nervousness on the part of both teams, due to the issue at stake, there were pretty frequent outbursts of brilliant basketball, most of which were supplied by the sensational long-shooting of the Redmen and the fast-breaking attacks of the victorious Nats.

McGill looked like potential winners all through the first half and for about five minutes of the second, but the first Red replacement which found Conklin, an intermediate recruit, going on for Donny Small, also found the Redmen in a dazed condition, defensively speaking, in the following five minutes, during which time the Nationale outfit barged merrily through to a 24-13 lead. McGill began to function again soon afterwards and made things uncomfortably hot for the eventual winners, even forging on to a position but two points behind as the scoreboard showed 28-26, but Nationale put the pressure on once more and finally eked out their meagre five-point victory.

It would be pretty difficult to pick any outstanding men from either aggregation, but special orchids go to Pat Griffin of the winners, who scored 13 points, and to George Faulkner, stellar Redman who played a splendid game at an unaccustomed defence position and still found time to score four beautiful long shots and two free throws for a 10 point total, thereby finishing his college basketball career in a blaze of glory. Both of the other two graduating stars, Reed Lewin and Oakie Ross, worked like Trojans all night and made very few lapses either offensively or on the defence, with the former contributing five markers to the collegiate cause while the latter scored one much-needed basket.

Don Young, who went unrelieved throughout the game, was not in his usual effective passing mood, but nevertheless managed to connect pretty often with spear-head plays when he eluded the presistent Nationale checks. Young garnered four points, which marks for the hoop-shy veteran something of a season record. Small went very well on the attack for the short period in which he played, but was unable to score. Marty Bowes counted four points towards the end of the game, while Conklin made up for his defensive lapse early in the second half by coming through with three very welcome markers later in the game.

Conspicuous by their failure to score their usual quota of baskets were the Patrick boys, Lynn and Murray who managed to collect a scant seven points between them, with the latter donating five markers to the cause. They were however always dangerous on those peculiar quick-breaking formations of the Cronau-coached squad, but left the hoop-ringing activities to the squad's lesser lights, of whom Johnny Schuler and Cliff Melville were most proficient.

It is worthy of mention that Nationale are not yet certain of keeping the cup, since they must first beat their arch City League rivals, N.D.G. in the circuit's regular schedule before they can shine up the ancient mug. If the Nats lose the pennant to the Community Cagers, the latter will automatically take possession of the trophy.

This afternoon the Redmen will have their profiles dedicated to posterity and the McGill Annual, at which time a new captain will be chosen to succeed Lewin.

flash and outstanding M.S.P.E. 2 co-ed flashed her way to the M.W.S.A.A. swimming championship yesterday afternoon at the Montreal High School pool, garnering 24 points to finish well ahead of her two nearest rivals Barbara McPherson, who counted 14 points, and Joyce Lewis, who chalked up 10 markers. Each of the high scorers were from M.S.P.E. 2, and consequently that division of R. V. ## CORRESPONDENCE

Editor-in-Chief,
McGill Daily,
Montreal.

Sir: Regarding Wednesday's hockey game and your editorial comment thereon in yesterday's Daily, in which you regret the team's first defeat of the season, and assure us that we still have a champion hockey team, may I use your space to the extent not of registering "complaint and cavilling" against our hockey team—as your editor so happily puts it—but merely of sounding a warning note to the team and its numerous supporters.

My home is in the Maritimes and I have seen Moncton in action. Unless McGill snaps out of it, Moncton will treat them like a high-school team—to which they bore a remarkable resemblance on Wednesday night. And unless they snap out of it, they will soon—tonight in fact—they will lose the chance of avenging their previous defeat at the hands of the Maritimers. Any team that has pretensions to a champion's rating has no excuse for the miserable and highly disappointing exhibition we saw on Wednesday. Twenty five thousand spectators paid admission to the last three play-off games, of whom at least half were McGill supporters; surely the Red team owes it to their faithful support of Montrealers to give the province a better representative than Canadians could possibly be. The latter at best is just a fair team; McGill on the other hand is a great team—when it wants to be.

I do not wish to take up your valuable space, Sir, by commenting in detail on the game. Suffice it to say that in my humble opinion, McGill lost the game and the support of many followers in the very first period, by skating out with a chip on their collective shoulder. The referees' work left much to be desired, but only Insofar that they overlooked a score or more infractions of the rules—more than half of which should have been laid at McGill's door. Instead of aiding the faltering defence—which for some inexplicable reason has been wide open the last three games—the Redmen preferred to recline in the cooler, returning to find the game irretrievably lost.

Refining Of Sugar Described To Club

to a giant stock in about eighteen months. It is cut in four-foot lengths and carried to the factories in special railroads. Crushers are used to extract the juice from the cane. This juice is very dirty, and has to be cleaned. Lime is used to extract the main impurities, in which are often contained beetles and crabs. Further impurities are removed by a centrifugal machine. The dirt and molasses which remain are washed out of the machine leaving the sugar.

Sugar Is Chrystal

Sugar is a chrystal, the centre of which is pure sucrose, and the outer are molasses. It is the refiners work to separate the centre from the shell. This is done by a filter press, which consists of several discs, covered with specially woven cotton. The molasses is deposited with any remaining dirt on the cotton. The remainder is a clear sugar solution.

The sugar syrup is purified by bone black, which is obtained from the bones of animals by destructive distillation. This bone black is put into tall tanks, and the syrup is forced through it. All impurities are removed by this method. The bone black may be used again by drying and re-vivifying it.

The meeting was closed with a discussion on the marketing and use of sugar syrup. This syrup is only about 60% sugar, and is used as a cheap substitute for sugar in the manufacture of ice cream and preserves. Tariffs on the same level with sugar practically stop it from being imported. The machines in which it is used often become infested with moles, and the machinery is useless for further work.

Praise from a railroader

"... In adding to the large measure of praise which has already been accorded your Wakefield tobacco, I do so in the knowledge that this brand will supply a long-felt want to dissatisfied smokers. As a regular consumer of Wakefield, I can enjoy tobacco users in Canada who have looked for a brand that 'packs well in the pipe,' 'is free from superfluous moisture' and 'does not burn the tongue,' to switch to Wakefield..."
